The National Christian Committee of the United Jewish Appeal began its 1940 fund-raising campaign with the announcement that the Ford Motor Company has given $50,000. Announcement of the Ford gift was made at a meeting of the committee at which Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of the Interior; Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture, and other speakers urged American aid to Israel, asserting that a strong democratic nation in the Middle East was vital to the United States and the peace of the world.

All the speakers urged gifts by individuals to the U. J. A. and some called for additional assistance by the United States government. Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Democrat-Liberal, of New York, urged further loans to Israel and at the same time criticized Great Britain for supplying arms to Arab nations, says the New York Times. Mrs. J. Brendan Brown, Minister to Israel, said that the U. J. A. has received through the efforts of the U. J. A. the development of agriculture in the Holy Land. (Continued on Page Three)

Leaders of the National Conference of Christians and Jews announced final plans for a conference at Paris in June to establish a counterpart organization in Europe. Under the name "World Organization for Brotherhood" and the temporary leadership of the National Conference, the new group would try to consolidate separate religious and national loyalties into a moral bulwark against Communism.

The Paris conference will be held from June 8 to 11 under the general chairmanship of Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel Prize physicist. Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference, went by plane to Europe to prepare for the meeting. Dr. Compton and Dr. Clinchy met at East Ninety-third Street, the home of Roger W. Straus, chairman of the American Smelting and Refining Company and co-chairman of the National Conference, to complete the plans.

Dr. Strauss emphasized the fact that such a European organization, combining "the spiritual forces found in Western democracy," would have a "dynamic, not a defensive force. It is the best way to protect ourselves against Communism." The establishment of the organization, Dr. Clitchey said, will be "an attempt to use educational means to prepare for unity in the world." And, Dr. Crompton added, it can be considered "as strong a political force as a political force can be" in the sense that it will help to create an atmosphere in which political peace may become possible.

Among those scheduled to speak at the Paris Conference are Allan Rock, Minister of the Economy and Finance of the American Republics; Jacques Delors, President of the Economic Commission of the Council of Europe; Paul-Henri Spaak, president of the Council of Europe; Thomas E. Braniff, co-chairman of the National Conference; Spyros Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, and Oscar Hammerstein 2d.

Leasing J. Rosenwald, of Philadelphia, Pa., president of the American Council for Judaism, responded to criticism of the council voiced in New York by Benjamin Brewdy, president of the Zionist Organization of America. Mr. Brewdy was quoted as having urged the Council to disband; as having charged that the Council "has done nothing for Judaism on the American scene and has done nothing for Jewish activities for Jewish life."

Mr. Rosenwald said that in a democracy it is not customary for an organization to be disbanded upon demand from its opponents. As an example of a contribution, not only for Jews but for unfortunate of various faiths he cited the successful work in behalf of passage of a liberalized displaced persons law.

Mr. Browdy had referred to the fact that the Council For Judaismism was holding its annual conference in Cincinnati on the second anniversary of Israel's establishment. "It is ironic that the Council — which for years prior to the establishment of Israel predicted the doom of American Jewry should the Jewish State arise, and which has consistently fought the idea of a Jewish State — should choose the second anniversary of Israel for its annual conference. The emergence of Israel as an equal member among the nations of the world is the greatest and most startling rebuke to the continued

• Emil Schwarzhaupt, who emigrated to the United States from Germany in 1910 and rose from salesman to become an executive of a major distilling concern, left an estate in excess of $4,000,000 for distribution to charitable, educational and religious organizations. He died March 30. This was revealed when his will, dated December 19, 1945, was filed in Surrogate Court, in New York.

Mr. Schwarzhaupt, who retired as president of the Bernheim Distilling Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, a subsidiary of Schenley Industries, Inc., in 1949, bequeathed sums ranging from $1,000 to $250,000 to fifty organizations, and directed that the residue of the estate should be used to establish the Emil Schwarzhaupt Foundation, Inc., for the promotion of the American citizenship, especially among the foreign-born.

The University of Miami, at Miami, Fla., was willed $250,000, the largest single sum. The second largest bequest was $100,000 to the American Museum of Natural History. Mr. Schwarzhaupt left $50,000 each to the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, the Greater New York Federation of Churches, the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, the Michael Reese Hospital, of Chicago, Ill., the National Conference of Christians and Jews, of which he had been an official, and the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives. He bequeathed $25,000 each to the Art Institute of Chicago, the Boy Scouts of America, the Hospital for Joint Diseases, the Jewish Federation of Chicago, the Juvenile Service League, the New York League for the Hard of Hearing and the New York Theological Society.

The Governor Smith Memorial Hospital, named for Mr. Schwartz's old friend, the late Governor Alfred E. Smith, was left $10,000, according to the will. Similar sums were left to the American Jewish Committee, the American Red Cross, the Bada County Fla., Community Chest, the National Geographical Society, and St. Francis Hospital, Miami Beach, Florida. During the past twenty years, Mr. Schwartz, who was fifty-seven and lived at the Hotel Florio, spent more than $20,000 in the purchase of automobiles for the Central Park Zoo, which he visited almost every Sunday.

The new organization "will cover things which are the business of the old group," he said.

existence of the Council," he said.

Mr. Browdy further charged that the Council's activities, although enjoying infinitesimal support among the American Jewish community, are only serving as fodder for the propaganda machines of the anti-Semites in America. The charge of "dual allegiance," which the Council has been bandying around so indiscriminately against Zionists, is being ridiculed by the public. No one would even dream of hurling such charges against Americans of Irish extraction who are now waging such an intense effort for the unity of their mother country. American Jews owe their allegiance first to the government of the United States.

Mr. Browdy cited the address of Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett to the General Assembly of the United Nations at Lake Success on May 11, 1948, in which he officially accepted, in behalf of the State of Israel, full membership in the United Nations. In the address Foreign Minister Sharett made the following statement: "The State of Israel claims no allegiance from Jews in other lands. As a sovereign entity, it rests on the loyalty of its own citizens. It alone is responsible for its actions and policies." This should suffice to lay the ghost of "dual allegiance" to rest once and for all, Mr. Browdy said. He urged the leaders of the Council to convert its annual conference on the second anniversary of the Jewish State into a "conference of dissolution."

Mr. Rosenwald charged that "Zionist nationalism" was promot"ing "Jewish separatism" in the U. S. Addressing 850 delegates he denounced the Zionist movement and cited six examples of the Zionist program that he maintained were being used "to transform the status of Jews here from that of individual Americans of Jewish faith into a minority-nationality group."

"Zionist publicity and programs," he asserted, "attempt to establish for all Jews a common national descent, common language, common 'homeland', common customs that are secular and not religious and common political attitudes about the State of Israel."

The Council's president further asserted, according to the New York Times, that "in addition, Zionism subordinates the universalism and absolute ethical principles of Judaism to the exigencies of Israel and Israeli policies; thus Zionism attempts to nationalize even the religion of all Jews."

He criticized "many non-Zionists" for their support of Zionist nationalist aims, declared that this financial and influential support has resulted in the "historic betrayal of the way of life which Americans of Jewish faith have enjoyed for a century and a half."

Reporting on the Council's activities for the past year, Rabbi Elmer Berger of New York, the organization's national executive director, said that the Council had been responsible "for alerting American Jews to the dangers of the Zionist effort to train American Jewish youth for resettlement in Israel."

Anti-Semitic outbursts in Western Germany were termed a "disgrace" by John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner, in a statement at Frankfurt, urging every citizen and official to take steps to halt them. Mr. McCloy's statement was issued as a result of the desecration of Jewish cemeteries in Frankfurt, Munich, Goettingen, and other localities in Western Germany and the recent demonstration by a mob against a lone half-Jewish girl in Hamburg.

Mr. McCloy's statement made allowance for the fact that the majority of the German people were not involved in the new anti-Semitic disturbances and for the "poison" generated by the "vicious agitation" of the Nazi regime, reports the New York Times. But such occurrences "are a disgrace and every German citizen is injured by them," he declared. He added they "do so much harm" that "every decent citizen of Germany and other officials should take pains to put a stop to them."

Simultaneously British sons of officials in the office of Maj. Gen. W. H. Bishop, state commissioners for North Rhine-Westphalia, weighed action against the projected new Stahlhelm organization, due to be "refounded" April 20. The new organization, supposed to be a modern version of the post-World War I association of militant war veterans, is headed by Hans Joachim Gottliebson, one of the founders of the "German National People's Party."

An announcement of the group's coming organization distributed in Drummaider includes the sentence: "The Stockholm does not want to be militarist or Fascist but only wants to take account of the numerous debates on remilitarization and the changed views on the creation of a Common Army."

Harry Guttenbach described the objectives of the new party, as including the reunification of Germany and the "peaceful" restoration "of all institutions which have been wrongly assumed by other countries." According to the announcement, the candidates will seek the support of "the young, the old, the rich and the poor, the urban and the rural, the German and the foreign."

Representative Roosevelt called for additional governmental loans such as the $100,000,000 loan recently made by the Export-Import Bank. "It is my earnest hope that such action will be speedily taken by our government," he said, according to the Herald Tribune.

Asserting that the United States must strive earnestly to build peace in the Middle East, he said sale of arms by Britain to Arab nations "represents a very serious threat to democracy not only in Israel, but throughout the world."

Secretary Chapman said it is imperative for all people to realize that if American democracy is to remain strong, "we must make sure that the light of democracy is not extinguished anywhere on the globe."

"This is the great year of Israel's need," Mr. Chapman said, "and it is also the year during which millions of the world's people will choose some way of life which they believe can promise them security for the future. The democratic system of government is undergoing the severest test in its history, and men and women in far-flung areas of the earth's surface are looking for leadership that will guide them from the darkness of fear into the light of peace."

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The WHITE-THROATS' whistling song is a typical sound of Canadian springtime. He feeds on the ground, searching among the leaves and twigs for beetles, grasshoppers, weed seeds and wild berries. Protect him—he's a valuable pest destroyer and a dainty singer.

You're looking at the first 60 minutes of a miracle!

This is her first hour in Israel!

And in that hour, the sorrow and misery, the hunger and fear, of her long flight are momentarily forgotten... banished by the joy of the miracle that brought her here... a miracle that is really many miracles in one.

It's a miracle that Israel is reborn... a miracle that the Jews held off the Arabs... a miracle that 250,000 Jews were brought to Israel in 1948.

But these miracles didn't just happen! A world of suffering and toil, of blood and sweat went into their making.

And even then, no miracles could have been wrought if you hadn't worked valiantly and given generously!

Thousands... yes, tens of thousands of people still stand before the gates of Israel, pleading to be let in. For them, homes must be built. Clothes must be made... tools must be fashioned... crops must be planted. Factories must be built, and hospitals must be started.

And you... you who have helped to bring about so many miracles, must buckle down and help some more... and still more.

The work is started, and prospers mightily. The goal is actually in sight. But it cannot be attained... indeed, all that has gone before can come to naught... if we fail to do what is expected of us now.

So work for Israel. Give for Israel. For was it not written: "Thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother, but thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him..."

So Little Time

The days intervening between Passover and Shavuoth are designated as days of "sephira". In accordance with the biblical injunction we count these days with the second night of Passover until we reach the Feast of Weeks. "And ye shall count unto you from tomorrow after the day of rest, from that day that ye brought the sheaf offering of the waving; seven weeks shall there be complete; even unto the morrow after the seventh week shall ye number fifty days." (Leviticus 23:15)

The counting of days is a beautiful way of teaching us the value of time. What is time? Many are the definitions. Thus, one thinker speaks of time "as the stuff life is made of"; another defines time "as a sandpile in which we run our fingers in"; and still another speaks of time as "the soul of the world". Benjamin Franklin said, "Time is money." However, we choose to define time, of one thing we are all certain, that the day is short. As human beings we measure events by time and realize that time is, indeed, short!

Youth dislikes the phrase "time is short", for youth is dedicated to the future and is enchanted by the view of distance. It hardly thinks in terms of the past. Yet the first twenty years in a person's life are the longest he will ever know. The golden years of youth speedily pass on before they are even well begun. How important, therefore, it is that youth make the years count for the finer things in life and learn to make the best possible use of time. Well has the religious sage admonished, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

Alas, living in the kind of a world we find ourselves, in which materialism dominates, youth is so often driven to neglect idealism and the spiritual values of life. Yet without these and the cultivation of these in the days of youth, we move into a life of maturity which has no poetry and no song, with the result that life may become an animal existence clothed in human garb. Very early must youth learn to be jealous of time. History records how the noble sons of men have ever guarded precious time and in early youth made unique contributions to human welfare.

Certainly, when we reach middle age we soon discover how time is fleeting. And yet it is most important in this period of life to be of good courage and cheer despite the disappointments and the loss of enthusiasm which we all experience. For what human being is there who has lived forty years and has not made mistakes? All the more is it vital that in this period of life we take on renewed strength, build for certainty, and move forward in enrichment of our soul life.

"Cast me not aside in the time of my old age," cries the Psalmist. What a human cry and how well we understand it! For old age often means poverty and sickness and feebleness and helplessness. It is therefore but natural that men fear old age. However, old age can be a joyous experience if we are given the chance to grow old gracefully. The time of old age should be a period for meditation and reflection upon life. We know of such lovely humans who possess the peace of God and are able to make old age a blessing for themselves and for those in whose midst they dwell.

How many of us count our days in terms of our Jewishness? Here is our precious heritage, Judaism! How well do we give of our personal service to the cause of our religion upon which hinges the very salvation of humanity? Multitudes among us spend their days in naught, in the meaningless, and in the mere getting and spending. Few, indeed, there are among us who in these days meditate over Torah. Few, indeed, there are among us who engage in the personal service of visiting the sick, the lonely, and the broken-hearted.

What shall we say about the art of prayer and worship which seems to have faded out to such a large degree among us moderns? Yet we know there can be no religion without counting days in terms of meditation and in terms of spiritual culture. We have so little time for these abiding values of life. How important it is that we use time wisely and that we waste not our days.

Somewhat, the trouble with all of us is that we seem to know only one kind of arithmetic and that is the counting of money. We fall in the art of counting time. "So little time" but enough in which to make life noble, livable and lovable if we but live courageously and walk during our short pilgrimage on earth in the ways of God, the Eternal and the Timeless One.

Recently, we were struck by a painting which indicated a door with a knob hanging on it on the outside. A hand was reaching out for the knob of the door. The artist indicated the meaning of the painting by the following description: "That which I should have done I did not do." The friend we neglected to visit in time of sickness by postponing the visit, in the meantime passes on to the great beyond. What about the letter we have failed to write to a dear one who is waiting for the word of cheer from us which never came? How negligent we all are with time and how truly we fail to budget this most precious possession of life.

"We live in deeds, not years, in thoughts, not breaths,

In feelings, not in figures on a dial.

We should count life by heart throbs.

His lives most

Who thinks most, feels the noblest, and acts the best."

The American Council for Judaism went on record in a series of resolutions condemning every phase of the Zionist movement, including one that denounced the "efforts of Zionist leaders to stimulate the emigration of Americans of Jewish faith to Israel."

The resolution highlighted the closing sessions as Leasing J. Rosenwald, of Philadelphia, Pa., was re-elected president. Mr. Rosenwald was presented with a plaque by the delegates in recognition of his work on behalf of displaced persons' legislation in the U. S.

The delegates, in adopting the resolution on emigration, lashed out at the Zionist hehalutz (pioneering) program and pledged "vigorously to oppose the organized efforts of Jewish nationalists to stimulate a desire to leave the United States where no such desire in fact exists."

In another adopted resolution, the delegates condemned efforts to restrain the Council from publicly expressing its views, terming these efforts as "unwarranted and undemocratic." The Council criticized such efforts by the American Jewish Committee and by the National Community Relations Advisory Council, a coordinating body representing national Jewish organizations, saying that their actions were "dangerously close to totalitarian efforts to silence opposition."

For the most part, the unanimously adopted resolutions were sharp attacks on Zionism, reports the New York Times. One called attention to the "frequent, erroneous identification of Judaism with Israeli or Zionist nationalism in our religious schools," saying that this "handicaps our Jewish youth in sharing completely and unreservedly in the spirit of America."

The resolution urged parents to "maintain the most careful vigil over the religious school teaching and especially the textbooks used in the synagogue religious schools."

In another resolution the delegates asserted that no organization or groups of organizations including its own, had the right to speak for all American Jews.

"In particular, we resent the practice of Zionist organizations or others in issuing statements in behalf of the Jewish community of a city or of the nation; we emphatically deny their right to speak for anyone other than their own members," it added.

The conference asserted that both the Council as an organization, and its members, "are vitally concerned with the need to contribute generously to humanitarian and philanthropic causes in Israel and elsewhere." The resolution added that the "present structure of the United Jewish Appeal and many of our local fund-raising organizations is such that those who desire to support philanthropy are compelled also to contribute to Jewish nationalist causes, both in this country and abroad."

"The recent resolution of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds," the resolution added, "calling for the establishment of an overall purely philanthropic fund for our co-religionists in Israel is a constructive step which we heartily commend."

In a preamble to the resolutions, the Council reaffirmed its "belief that the overwhelming majority of Americans of Jewish faith have and want no national rights or obligations to any nation other than the United States of America."

ASKS EVERY GERMAN

scrutinizing the projected new organization carefully for signs that it is a para-military organization against which they could act.

General Bishop said recently that the old Stahlhelm was such an organization and that if the new group operated under the same principles it would be banned.

Dr. George N. Shuster, newly appointed State Commissioner for Bavaria, declared in New York that Germans could be taught "a good deal about democracy" under a proper educational system in Western Germany. Dr. Shuster's appointment was announced in Frankfurt by High Commissioner McCloy.

"My approach to this task is to do what Mr. McCloy asks me to do," he said. "I expect to leave for Germany about July 1 and to stay there for one year. I'm not going with any preconceived notions, although I have seen some experiments in education in Western Germany with which I do not entirely agree."

"If we set up a proper educational system we can teach the Germans a good deal about democracy," he added. "Six delegations of German women have visited Hunter College recently, and I think they learned something about democracy in education at those visits."

Thirty tons of toys for the immigrant children of Israel were sent from Philadelphia aboard the S. S. AKKO of the Israel-American line, newest addition to Israel's Merchant Marine. The shipment is the last of a series collected from the children of the United States through the American Legion's "Tide of Toys" drive which began last Christmas with the support of Drew Pearson, radio commentator and newspaper columnist. Nearly 3,000,000 toys have already been distributed among the children of Europe, most of them bearing personal messages of good-will and friendliness from the young American donors. The thirty-ton shipment to Israel, comprising about 180,000 individual toys, will be distributed by the Jewish Agency among the tens of thousands of children in the immigrant camps and elsewhere in the Jewish State, in many instances to children who have never seen toys before.
